Editor in Chief Comment

We are extremely grateful to our panelists who made invaluable contributions to helping us understand the significant challenges facing our nation's veterans, from the lasting injuries they suffer protecting this country to the difficulties they encounter upon reintegration back into society. The panelists from the 2014 University of Miami National Security & Armed Conflict Symposium, titled "Veterans Affairs: Legal Issues Impacting Those Who Serve and Have Served," presented from a wide breadth of experiences and backgrounds, and gave all of those in attendance fascinating, multidisciplinary insight into the unique problems facing veterans and how this country may be able to better honor them for their sacrifices.

The 2014 NSAC Symposium would not have been possible without the tireless efforts of Chief Symposium Editor Laura Scala, who developed the topic of the event, recruited our wonderful panel of speakers, and handled everything necessary to bring this idea to fruition. We would also like to thank Colonel Noel Christian Pace, University of Miami School of Law Class of 2015, and Professor Alyssa Dragnich for volunteering their time and expertise as moderators of the two panels.

This Symposium Edition is dedicated to all members of the United States Military, past and present, who have chosen to dedicate themselves to the service of this country. We can never thank you enough for what you have done, but hopefully discussions such as those in this journal will provide a template for others to follow.

Acknowledgements

The editors thank the Dean of the Law School, Patricia White, Professor Markus Wagner, Dean of Students Janet E. Stearns, Special Advisor to the Law Reviews Emily Horowitz, Sabrina Segura, Gloria Garcia, The Sheridan Press, and the University of Miami School of Law for their generous contributions of leadership, guidance, and support, without whom this Symposium Edition would not have been possible.
