EDITOR'S NOTE

On June 22, 1994, the Judicial Administration, Selection and Tenure Committee of The Florida Bar and The Florida Bar Foundation sponsored a symposium entitled, Selection and Retention of Judges: Is Florida's Present System Still the Best Compromise? We are pleased to have adapted the five featured articles in this issue from presentations given at that symposium, in the hopes of contributing to the debate regarding the reform of Florida's judicial selection process.

The Judicial Administration, Selection and Tenure Committee would like to acknowledge the generous contributions to this symposium by:
