Volume 48:1

The Gateway to the Americas

Linnet Suárez, Editor-in-Chief¹

PRACTITIONER ARTICLES

The University of Miami Inter-American Law Review has a special place at the University of Miami School of Law. As the city of Miami is internationally recognized as the “Gateway to the Americas,” both the journal and the law school represent the important union between the United States and the Americas. The University of Miami Inter-American Law Review continues to dedicate itself to providing a scholarly forum to discuss major international and inter-American legal developments. Volume 48:1(Fall 2016) touches on current changes in the legal community resulting from the Food Safety Modernization Act. Volume 48:1 is also the byproduct of the 2015 University of Miami Inter-American Law Review’s annual symposium, Food Safety Modernization Act: The Future of Food Litigation.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The University of Miami Inter-American Law Review owes many acknowledgements for the production of Volume 48:1. First, we would like to thank K&L Gates for generously sponsoring our symposium, Food Safety Modernization Act: The Future of Food Litigation. We also want to thank Lindsey Lazopoulos Friedman and Robert Shawn Hogue because this issue would not have been possible without their hard work or expertise. We also want to thank Gloria Garcia, our administrative assistant, for her tireless work ethic and constant communication as well as Janet E. Stearns, Dean of Students, who has been instrumental in the Review’s success. We would also like to thank Patricia White, Dean of Miami Law, for her continuous support of student-run publications. Our Review is also heavily indebted to Emily Horowitz, Assistant Director of Academic Affairs & Student Services and Special Advisor to the Law Reviews, who has supported us with patient guidance at every step of publication.
